HOOD'S Sarsaparilla. Every house that is plastered on wood lath is a fire trap, and consequently a death trap. energy. As to the declaration of the Federation of Labor he said: "It is too verbose to merit much consideration. It is far better to rise above the mere slogan and to be in a crisis. This document deals with theories. What we need is action. Sympathy is not wanted; we want a coalition of forces against corporate powers, and unless we can get it we might as well at once consent to be terra. The strike has just begun. I think had positions taken by the Federation of Labor will only weaken their forces. I believe the local unions will give us their support. I see no way but to fight to a finish, and shall stand by the A. R. U. until they call the strike off."

DEBS WANTS TO RETURN

It would be impossible to get as good a scale of wages again as we have now, and therefore a general strike would be detrimental to our men. I am not in favor with Debs' request. He was so very arrogant in the start, not even recognizing us, and now he wants to shift the responsibility on us and blame us for losing the strike. Another thing, the Knights of Labor are in favor of soundly in an organized manner, and I understand that kind of thing. I do not care how smart he is, he cannot win. I can call out the iron and steel workers here, but I can see no favorable results, and therefore oppose the resolution."

Mr. Evans then said: "If the local organization of the American Federation of Labor had attended to his business the A. R. U. would never have handled this strike. I am sorry for the conditions and any action in that regard now."

Patrick McBride, representing the coal miners, then said: "If a strike is ordered let it be for the purpose of not for jobs. He has not managed this thing right, and now he wants help, and I am not in favor of doing it. A general strike ordered by the A. R. U. would be a general disadvantage to us. While I can call out all the miners I am not in favor of it and think it very unwise to attempt to bring another organization into this strike. If Debs has started it let him finish it."

FEDERATION WILL NOT STRIKE. The conference of the American Federation of Labor and the American Railway Union after having decided against a general strike. The petition of President Debs of the American Railway Union was forwarded to the executive council of the A. R. U. and the executive council of seven will hold a conference tomorrow afternoon at the public was issued after a long discussion. The address set forth that while the federation sympathizes with the American Railway Union, it does not believe that a strike would be worse than folly in the present industrial, financial and social condition of the country to request a general strike of the A. R. U. The federation also recommends that all of their members who are now on a strike should remain so.

LINCOLN TAKES THE LEAD

Another Turn at First Place Secured by Thomas Jefferson Hickey. HAD ALEX WHITEHILL HYPNOTIZED HIS BEAT EFFORTS WERE EASY TO HUCK AND HIS FOLLOWERS, WHILE BARNES WAS A SEATED ROCK TO THE OMAHA SLUGGERS.

LINCOLN, July 13.—(Special Telegram to The Bee.)—The Bourkes shivered and shook for nine full innings today before young Mr. Barnes and his good right arm. It was ladies' day, and over 2,000 people were out to see Papa and his coadjutors fall down before Mr. Buckingham Ebright's Pirates, and they fell so hard that Tom Hickey's strident voice could not be heard above the crash. Although working on full time, up to the ninth inning the Bourkes had gathered in but four hits, but at this juncture Mr. Hickey turned his face full upon young Mr. Barnes, and before he could recover from the shock Langford, Hutchison and McVey had stirred up the ball some with their spears. From the very start the Lincolns began pling base hits off Alex, and when a hit was not forthcoming some Bourke would shove in an error that smelted. Luck was also with the Pirates, and Faddy Boyer's several sensational catches and the Lincolns put up a snappy game from the start, winding up with a grand total of nine hits.

one day and announced that he desired to succeed Mr. Kraus in the position. Mr. Kraus laughed at him and took the announcement as a joke, and Prendergast sneaked out. With what eagerness he looked for the newspapers next morning! How anxiously he hoped that they would contain an account of his visit to Mr. Kraus. If they had probably Mayor Harrison would be alive today. If they had Prendergast would probably have been satisfied. He would have needed his name in 1930. He would have looked it over the other carriers of whom the public had never heard. But, unluckily for Mayor Harrison and for him, his disappearance was committed by Prendergast to no mention of the incident he had so carefully planned.

TRIED THE MAYOR. Exasperated by his failure to secure the society he craved, Prendergast determined to make another attempt. At last he selected Mayor Harrison. He called upon the mayor, and with all the gravity he could muster, stated his desire to be appointed corporation counsel. But the mayor was in good humor and the inebriation of the affair struck him. He chuckled at Prendergast's good natured and possibly forgot him. At any rate he did not think it necessary to notify the newspapers and again Prendergast failed of his purpose.

ON THE NIGHT OF THE MURDER. On the night of October 28, 1893, Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, was seated at dinner with his daughter in his residence on Ashland boulevard. The door bell rang and a low-browed, shambling, ill-fellow asked to see the mayor. The man was Prendergast. When he was informed that the mayor was at dinner he turned away and said he would return later. When the man called again the mayor was doing on a lounge. It had been "mayor's day" at the World's fair and he had made the best speech of his life in a vast throng of people. Mr. Harrison was awakened by the sound of voices and came toward the door. The man approached the mayor, said something which he did not hear, and then the servant and then pointed a revolver at Mr. Harrison's breast and fired. The assassin ran into the street and after discharging a ball the pursuing butler, who had been in Jackson street, shortly afterward surrendering himself to the police about the time the mayor expired.
